

Sceris[®] for Behavioral Health

ACHIEVE SUSTAINABLE RESULTS

ScerIS Behavioral Health Solutions (ScerIS) works with behavioral health agencies to craft actionable strategies and deliver solutions to help them become more efficient, streamlined and productive – improving clinician productivity, client satisfaction and the bottom line.

Our combined efforts provide optimized clinical and business processes that perpetuate healthy and sustainable results, results that are often achieved in just weeks or months. Reductions of 2-5% in agency-wide spending can be achieved by applying ScerIS strategies, solutions and services across the enterprise. For agencies that initially target departmental initiatives, reductions of 20-60% in some transactional process costs can be achieved.

ScerIS is a healthcare information technology and work process optimization solutions firm founded in 1993. ScerIS has applied its expertise in process analysis and process optimization in behavioral health agencies since 1998. Unmatched capabilities combined with equally unmatched solutions and services help our customers achieve extraordinary results.

One goal of our work is to acculturate the identification of optimization opportunities with agency employees so that the organization continues to pursue the identification of new opportunities and sustainable results. ScerIS helps promote this thinking by teaching several targeted methods that can apply across the entire agency that identify process optimization opportunities. Further, ScerIS teaches employees about work processes, some that benefit from certain highly leveragable technologies that help them promote a better, more effective work place.

Continuously Seeking Ways to Optimize Clinical and Business Processes

Example of an agency's experience with ScerIS

“ScerIS allowed us to accomplish a completely electronic client record that is highly user friendly. And it was the most seamless application implementation we have experienced. Through advanced scanning and document organizing technology, ScerIS allowed us to virtually eliminate paper documents. We have achieved annual six figure savings as a result.” Jeff Walter, President and CEO of Rushford Center, Inc.

Three Ways to Get Results

1. CONSULTING SERVICES

The ScerIS Behavioral Health Solutions Team is your resource to improved processes throughout your agency. Our team has years of experience optimizing work processes in behavioral health to maximize clinician productivity, client satisfaction and financial performance. This team helps agencies successfully identify and accomplish their goals with strategic, tactical and operational initiatives.

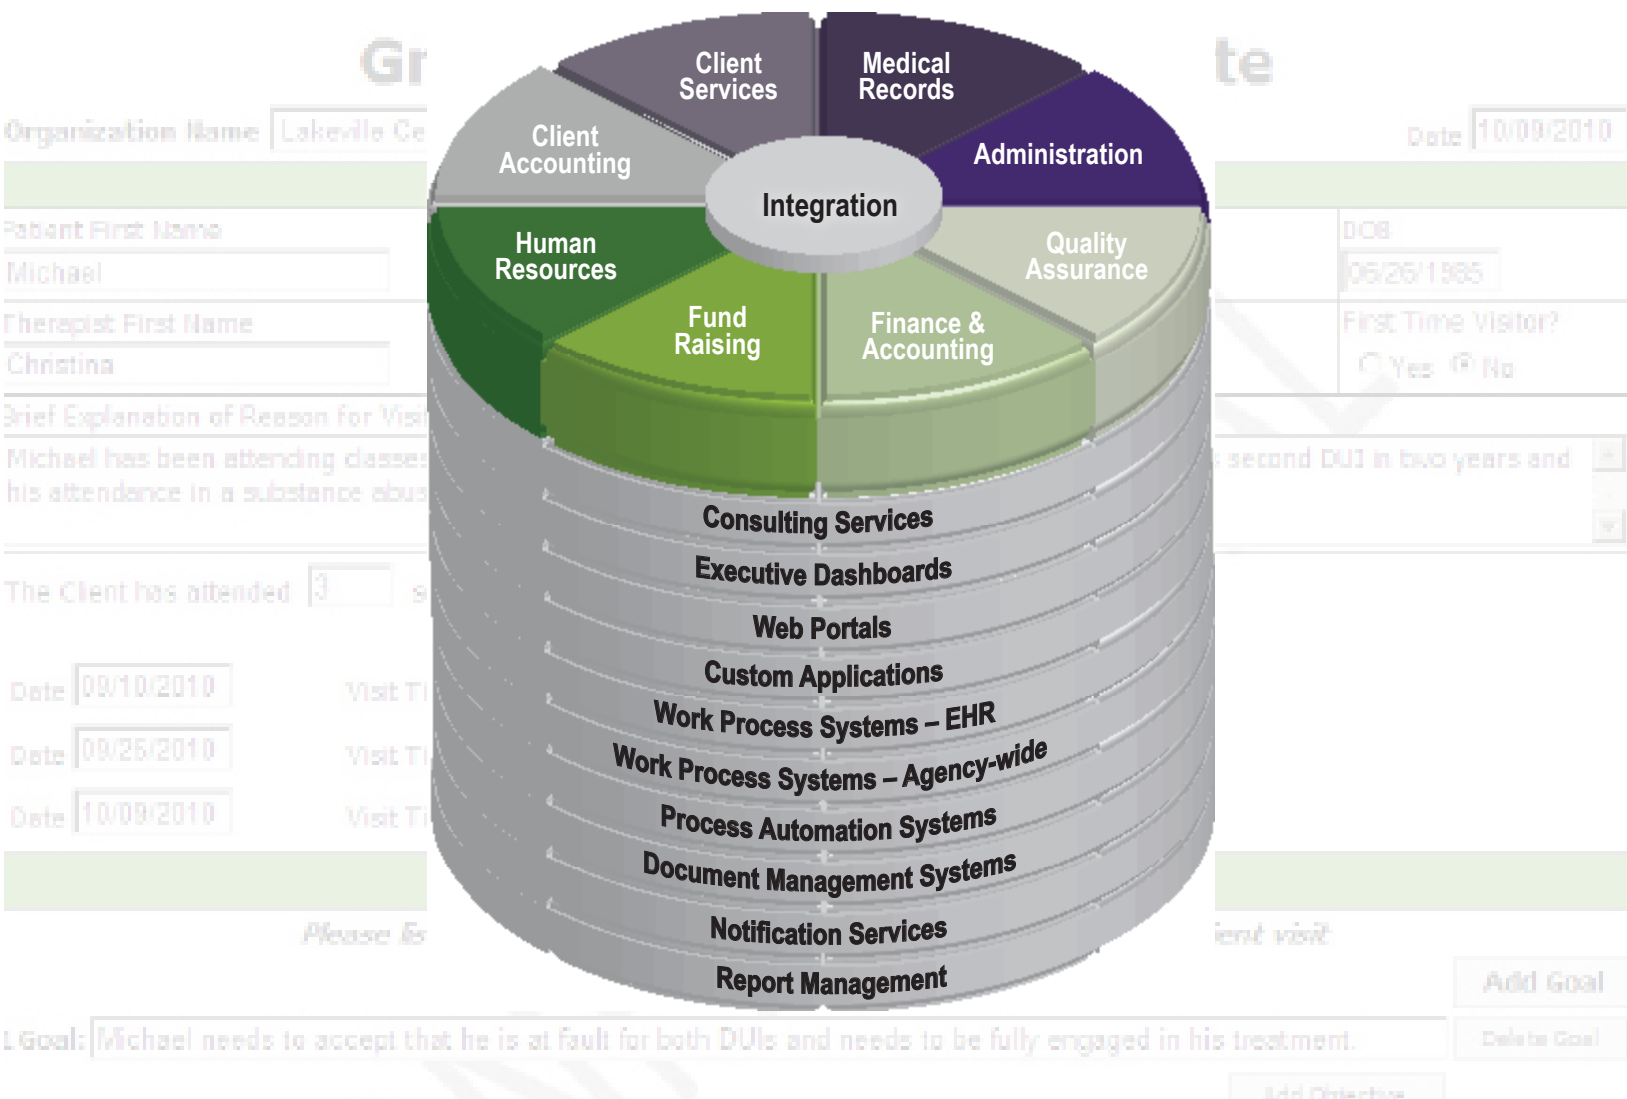

2. CORE SOLUTIONS

ScerIS has developed core solutions to improve transaction based human-centric and document-centric processes that are pervasive throughout behavioral health agencies. Core solutions produce optimized work processes with easily configured and implemented Content Management, Automation, Work Process Management and Report Management software.

3. CUSTOM SOLUTIONS

ScerIS helps behavioral health agencies with solutions customized to achieve their specific and unique requirements. These solutions are important to optimize internal processes and provide information needed for management decision purposes. Solutions include Custom Applications, Executive Dashboards, Web Portals and Outsourced Services.

ScerIS is a full-service provider of solutions and services that meet your specific requirements, lead to optimized business processes, fulfill your information needs and help accomplish your performance objectives.

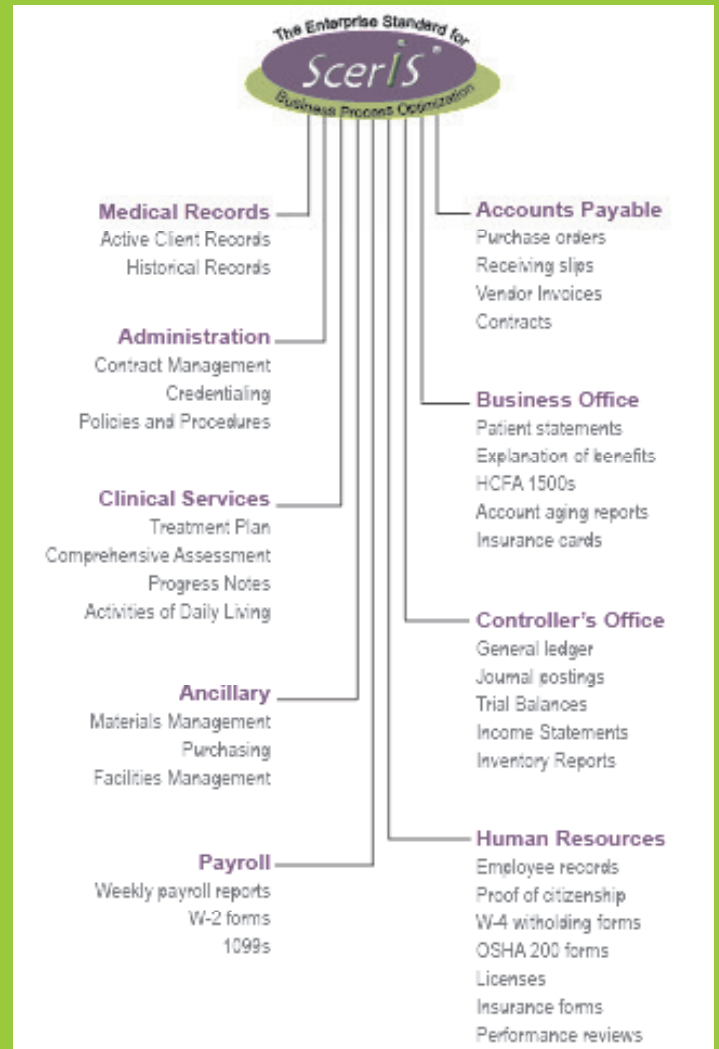

In behavioral health agencies, human-centric, information-centric and paper-centric business processes are a given, but the approach to achieving process optimizations is not. Although today's agencies may drive efficiency and productivity in compartmentalized functional areas, optimal solutions will prepare them for enterprise-wide clinical and business process optimizations.

OPTIMIZE INTERNAL PROCESSES

Since 1993, our customers' experiences have defined our success as a solutions provider. Each customer's requirements are different, so success requires leveraging creativity and innovation to produce unique solutions to unique challenges.

We have developed our core solutions to be configurable by our customers, enabling large or small projects to impact organizational performance while establishing the foundation for enterprise-wide optimization.

Our Behavioral Health Solutions team works as an integral part of your operations to craft actionable strategies. The end result is optimized business and clinical processes that perpetuate healthy and sustainable results.
